Team Homestead gets new honorary commanders

by Senior Airman Frank Casciotta

3/10/2016 - HOMESTEAD AIR RESERVE BASE, Fla. – Team Homestead welcomed its newest Honorary Commanders during an inaugural Assumption of Command ceremony March 5 at the Community Activity Center. The Honorary Commanders Program exists to encourage an exchange of ideas, sharing experiences and fostering friendships between key civic leaders from the local area and Homestead Air Reserve Base. The program provides a unique opportunity for Honorary Commanders to shadow 482nd Fighter Wing leaders and get a glimpse of the military experience. During the ceremony, each new honorary commander was presented a plaque from their military counterpart and welcomed into their respective new squadron.

Col. David Garfield, the 482nd Fighter Wing commander, spoke on the value of a strong relationship between the community and the base. "You have the strength we can use to help America 'Win,'" said Garfield. "We need you to spread the message of who we are and let folks in the community know that our purpose is to support them and our country by training the finest Airmen who will then defend the constitution from our enemies, and provide you the freedoms you enjoy." Sharon Haxton, the 482nd FW honorary commander, said she looks forward to seeing what other honorary commanders will do with the knowledge they gain from the partnership between the base and community. "It was impressive to know that each honorary commander was hand-picked by each squadron based on their skills and knowledge," said Haxton. "I know that I will do my part to help continue bringing the base and community closer together. The more I learn, the more I can bring back to the community and I plan to stay as involved as I can. It is such an honor to have been selected for this position, I couldn't be prouder." The honorary commanders will serve their respective units for a term of two years before new commanders from the community are appointed.

SPACE - A RESERVATIONS

Lodging will accept and confirm reservations for Priority 2 (space available) guests according to the guidelines outlined in AFI 34-246 table 3.1. Priority 1 guests will not 'bump' Priority 2 guests with confirmed reservations, nor will they bump them once they are assigned quarters for a specific period of time, except in times of contingency or when the Installation Commander determines higher priorities exist.

HARB among four candidate bases for F-35

WASHINGTON (AFNS) -- Air Force officials announced April 12 that Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Arizona; Homestead Air Reserve Base, Florida; Naval Air Station Joint Reserve Base Fort Worth, Texas; and Whiteman AFB, Missouri, are candidate bases for the first Reserve-led F-35A Lightning II location.

The preferred and reasonable alternatives are expected to be selected in the fall and the F-35As are slated to begin arriving at the first Reserve-led F-35A location by the summer of 2023.

F-35A Lightning II in test flight

The Air Force also released basing criteria that will be used to select candidate bases for two Air National Guard squadrons, which are planned to receive their first aircraft in the summer of 2022.

"The Air Force is committed to a deliberate and open process to address F-35 basing," said Jennifer A. Miller, the deputy assistant secretary of the Air Force for installations. "As we progress through the basing process, we will share information so interested communities are aware of what to expect."

The basing criteria for the Air National Guard bases include mission requirements (weather, airspace and training range availability), capacity (sufficient hanger and ramp space, and facility considerations), environmental requirements, and cost factors.

The Air Force will evaluate Guard installations with runways of at least 8,000 feet and operational A-10 Thunderbolt IIs, F-16 Fighting Falcons or F-15 Eagles against the approved criteria to identify candidate bases for the F-35A.

After identifying candidate bases, the Air Combat Command and Air National Guard will conduct site surveys at each location as applicable. Site survey teams will assess each location against operational requirements, potential impacts to existing missions, infrastructure and manpower, and then develop cost estimates to bed down the F-35A.

Based on the results of these efforts, the Air Force plans to identify candidate installations for the Air National Guard locations this summer before selecting the preferred and reasonable alternatives and beginning the environmental impact analysis process later this year.

"Leap into a Jeep" winner revealed!

Air Force Installation and Mission Support Center

Congratulations to Tech. Sgt. Ana Cruz at Whiteman Air Force Base, Missouri. Her name was randomly placed on the lucky key that started a 2016 Jeep Rubicon during the Air Force Clubs Membership Appreciation Month Leap Into a Jeep event! The other two contestants didn't walk away empty handed. Although their keys didn't start the Jeep, Marlin Tatom of Nellis Air Force Base, Nevada, and Larry Beck of Holloman Air Force Base, New Mexico, will each receive checks for $2,500! Check out the moment when the Air Force Services Activity's Chief Enlisted Manager Chief Master Sgt. Jason Toney turned the winning key. MyAirForceLife. Contest Focuses on Artists and Photographers Creativity

JOINT BASE SAN ANTONIO-LACKLAND, Texas -- Budding photographers and artists and can enter the 2016 Photo and Art Contest, sponsored by the Air Force Services Activity.

Authorized patrons of Air Force Support Squadron programs are eligible to participate in the Air Force Services Activity also known as AFSVA promotions and contests.

Winning entries in each category can earn gift cards in amounts of $300 (1st place), $200 (2nd) and $100 (3rd). Another contest feature includes a people's choice, where visitors can go to www.myairforcelife.com/arts/ and choose their favorite photos.

A virtual ribbon will be awarded in each category for photos with the most likes, similar to Facebook, said Sandy Hillard, Community and Leisure Branch Chief, AFSVA Programs Directorate.

"My Air Force Life in Focus" is this year's theme for the photo contest, which will be accepting submissions May 1-30.

The contest is divided into adult and youth categories. Adult will have novice and accomplished subcategories, and youth will feature teens (ages 13-17), pre-teens (9-12) and child (6-8). Participants can submit up to three entries via www.myairforcelife.com/arts/ during the contest period. This year's contest is a departure from what AFSVA has done in the past, Hillard said.

"We were tasked by (the AFSVA commander) to come up with a new, innovative way to have a gallery," she said. "We were looking to spice things up. To make it more competitive, we added more age groups."

Since 2005, AFSVA has sponsored an online gallery featuring participants' work. Last year, approximately 650 participants submitted 1,600 pieces, and everyone received recognition, Hillard said. Because it's the first year of the contest, Hillard said it's unknown how many will participate. But she added between the photo and art contest, she anticipates double the participation. Three photography experts will serve as judges, to evaluate and score entries based on creativity, impact and technical proficiency, Hillard said.

Art contest:

This year's theme is "Happy Birthday Air Force." Submissions will be accepted Sept. 1-30, with winners announced Nov. 1.

Submissions can consist of digital, drawings, paintings, ceramic, mixed media, fiber, glass and wood art, said Jon Grammer, AFSVA Director of Programs.

"What it boils down to is to acknowledge the heritage and long history of the Air Force through their perspective," Grammer said. "The thought was to encourage artists to give a visual representation of the Air Force's 69th birthday."
